"Socialites wanted"

Steve Phelan & Rachel Garnham

Hello from your new CBYA Hon Sec.,

Well then, you socialites and lounge lizards..... you heard it at the "AGM".....this is your big opportunity to put your wine glass down for a day and have yet even more fun on a boat for a change.

No experience required..... the plan is, to have a series of practical days out on a 9 meter yacht currently moored in Denia. The idea being is to get all those people who either have not had a chance to experience sailing before, or perhaps a little nervous, or indeed anybody who would just like to brush up their sailing skills. It is our intention during the day out to teach those "first timers" and "ex socialites" all about boat handling skills (motor or sailing yacht), mooring, safety at sea, wind awareness etc. etc. in a fun and extremely relaxed way, with absolutely no heroics whatsoever, or indeed any "Ellen MacArthur" type antics.

Hopefully, by the end of the session or sessions, you will feel more comfortable and confident to help out on a yacht and to become a full and active competent member of the crew.

Rachel will lead the session and I will be on hand throughout the day to assist her.... and to perhaps help with pouring you a glass of wine should you be getting withdrawal symptoms from your normal socializing programme. (Bring your own!!)

Please either contact Rachel or myself if you are interested and we will try and get groups together of around 4/6 people. Once we get the numbers, we will contact you with more details re joining the boat, dates and times.

There will be a 25 euro cost per head to contribute towards mooring fees and costs. (paid directly to the yacht owner and not the CBYA)

So c'mon...give us a call and get your "sea legs working"...and give your "liver a rest"!

Regards,

Steve Phelan
